Neither of these are covered by this warranty. You should obtain expert advice from a climate control specialist and undertake regular monitoring to ensure that the humidity level in the home is within the acceptable range. Special care must be taken with the operation of Evaporative Cooling. The incorrect or overuse of evaporative cooling can dramatically increase the humidity level of the home and cause moisture problems. The Evaporative Cooling's manufacturer instructions must be followed at all time an care must be taken to ensure humidity does not rise above 70%.
